MORE ABOUT THE GREAT WEDDING.

The steamship Hansa, from Southampton on the 16th of March, arrived here last evening with three days later news from Europe.

The Inman steamer City of Washington, Capt. Simmons, which left Liverpool at 10:20 on the morning of the 18th, and Queenstown on the 19th March, also arrived late last night.

The Canada arrived on Sunday, March 15.

The Gil Blas, arrived at Havre March 14, reports having been spoken on Feb. 22, in lat. 31° N., lon. 67° W., by the Alabama, which put in board two Frenchmen belonging to the Olive Jane, from Bordeaux for New-York, which had been burnt by the Alabama on the 21st February. The Alabama had on the same day taken a very large vessel bound from California for Queenstown. The Gil Blas sailed in company with the Alabama, and in the evening saw the flames of a fire.

The Le Pleiade, which arrived at Southampton March 16, reports the Alabama was cruising off St. Lucia, W. I., and it was reported had captured two vessels. Commodore WILKES, in the Vanderbilt, left St. Thomas March 1, in pursuit of the Alabama.

The Daily News says: The Gibraltar (late Sumter) has been thoroughly repaired at Birkenhead, and is now ready for sea.

The screw steamer Southerner, intended for the Confederates, was launched last week at Stockton.

The gunboat built by Miller & Sons, at Liverpool, for the Confederates, was also launched last week.

The London Times, of March 17, announces that the Edward Stanley, from the Mexican port of Matamoras, brought $100,000 in specie, consisting mostly of Confederate remittances through Texas.

AMERICAN AFFAIRS.

The Confederate Cotton Loan.

The London Times, in its issue of March 18, says of this financial scheme:

"The ratification having been received, the Confederate Seven Per Cent. Cotton Loan of £3,000,000 will be brought out on Thursday, by Messrs. HALLGARTEN, at Paris and Frankfort; Messrs. J. H. SCHROEDER & Co., in London and Amsterdam; and Messrs. FRAZAR, TASSNECK & Co., at Liverpool. The cotton hypothecated as security is to be delivered to the holder of each bond, at his option, at the rate of 10d. per pound, free of expense, at the Southern shipping ports, either immediately or within six months after the ratification of peace. The price at which bonds are to be issued is 90, with dividends in sterling and sinking fund for redemption at par in 20 years.

The News of the same date says:

"It appears that the prospectus of the Confederate Government Loan is to be issued to-morrow, through Messrs. JOHN HENRY SCHROEDER & Co., of this city, the expected formal ratification and powers from the Confederate Government having arrived yesterday. The loan is to consist of £3,000,000 of seven per cent. bonds, to be offered at 90 per cent. It will be specifically designated a 'Seven per Cent. Cotton Loan,' and one of its peculiar features is that the bonds are to be exchangable against cotton, the latter being taken at the fixed price of 6d. per pound. This arrangement is of course designed by way of attraction to the speculative appetite, for, supposing it were possible to get the cotton away and well off at Liverpool at 6d. per lb., the holder of a bond, which has cost £90 might get from £120 to £130. In every respect, therefore, this is a very remarkable operation. The Confederate Government have agreed that the cotton shall be free from any additional export duties that may hereafter be imposed, and it is urged on behalf of the loan that the cotton hypothecated must be the first to reach the European market, inasmuch as the Confederate Government will possess a monopoly of the means of transport to the coast. As a matter of course, the security of the bondholders will depend entirely upon the ability of the South to maintain its independence."

Our Government Finances.

The Times says, in its financial column, under date of March 16:

"If the public had not for the past two years had proof by every mail of the unqualified ignorance of financial principles which prevails among all classes of the American people in the Federal States, the news to-day of the price of gold having fallen from 175 to 140 on the legislation in Congress to check all speculative dealings in it would have been astonishing. The speculative purchasers of gold hitherto made with borrowed capital have been either by now or very shortly compelled to realize, and the gold market has been so cleared, that it may always prove to be safe to close the transaction at a large profit—a calculation which has been in every instance fulfilled; and the only result of interfering with these operations must be to increase the alternative either of selling or delaying that rise in prices of all goods measured in paper currency, which can alone check consumption. From the commencement of the war the Americans have never been able to comprehend the fact that the expectation of specie must be in exact proportion to the extent of the national expenditure over the national production of articles for exportation, and their faith in the power of the Washington parchment to control the movements of nature is as great as it was at the time when they refused to credit the possibility even of a suspension of specie payments. Within a few weeks the result of the measures just adopted will be found in a decided degravation of the existing drain and of the fluctuations in the rates of exchange."

Editorially, the Times comments as follows on the new Banking law passed by Congress:

"The Federal Government ought to be exceedingly grateful for the existence of the mother country. Unless our Banking Acts had shown the way, the Federal Government would never have ventured to force upon the States the Uniform National Currency and Banking Association bill. It was absolutely necessary, indeed, to issue more bonds and more 'greenbacks,' and by some means or other to keep up the value sufficiently for this purpose; but, without the British precedent, there was no possible way of doing this. Even this way was not possible two years ago. Some of the other measures that Congress in the last hours of the session, though, through the opening of dire necessity, could do so much to pave and complete the Northern States as the established seat of a national banking monopoly.

Its intended and very probable operation will be to destroy forthwith all the smaller fry of private banks, and absorb their circulation. At the beginning of the war it was computed that in the loyal States there was a circulation of 150,000,000 in dollar notes, and, as this was regarded as a loan to the banks without interest, it was a nice piece of booty to fling for, in that point of view alone. Matters have changed since then, and it is rather the power than the booty that is now so appreciated. All that power—that is, all that commands over the confidence and credit of the people—which is now lavished on speculations—speculations in corn, in gold, in railways, and fifty other things good or bad—is sent to be pounced upon by the Secretary of the Treasury and fixed into the chancelleries of war.

Moreover, as this Banking Association, from our own Banking acts, have two name attributes Association, which is not the case with the other Banking Associations, there are some attributes Association, which is not the case with the other Banking Associations, there are some attributes Association, which is not the case with the other Banking Associations, there are some

LITERATURE OF THE WEEK.

The Magazines.

—Foremost among the issues of the last few days are the Magazines for April, now just starting on their mission of civilization throughout the length and breadth of the land, where few schools are the schoolchildren altogether strange in their gentle influence. First is —Harper's New Monthly Magazine. Always attractive by its embellishments, the chief illustrated articles are "Another African Hunter," a foretaste of the sporting adventures of that late friend, WILLIAM CHARLES BALDWIN, just about to be published, with all the original illustrations, by Messrs. HARPER & BROS.; and "A Few Days in Moscow," by J. ROSS BROWNE, who has conducted the readers of Harper's through so many strange scenes, from the tropics to the Arctic Circle. Perhaps one of the most widely-read papers will be that piece of morbid anatomy, Mr. KINGLAKE's dissection of the character of the Emperor LOUIS NAPOLEON. Its effect has been to render his book a contraband article in France. Poetry and future events must decide whether it more resembles the subtle pleading of an advocate or the calm, deliberate charge of a Judge. The usual variety of fiction and light reading is furnished by Miss CHESEBROUGH, EGBE TERRY, and others. Miss EVANS' "Romola" is the only reprinted story, so that the number is essentially original in its contents.

—The Atlantic Monthly, for April, is a number of more than average interest. It commences with a paper on the "Vicissitudes of Keats' Fame," by his devoted friend and companion in life and death, JOSEPH SEVERN. The inevitable "Country Parson" follows with his thoughts on "Resignation." "Ike Marvel," of the Bachelor Reveries, is a raw and welcome contributor. His "Wet Weather Work" combines the learning of a scholar with the personal experience of a farmer, and is permeated with that tone of easy and gentlemanly sprightliness which seems exclusively his own. "Personal Recollections of Henry Thomas Buckle" excites curiosity in the dearth of information on that writer, but only proves that Boswells are as scarce as Johnsons. "The Golden Wedding" is an interesting sketch of the Cincinnati Cressus, RICHARD LONGWORTH, apparently by a near connection. Prof. AGASSIZ' scientific paper, "The Silurian Beach," needs no recommendation. The poetry, book notices, and many other articles, will be found equally noteworthy with those mentioned.

—The Continental Monthly, devoted to Literature and National Polity, admits a more liberal admixture of politics than the other monthlies, and contains important articles by the editor, (Hon. R. J. WALKER,) F. P. STARTON, and others. "How the War Affects Americans;" "Our Present Position, its Dangers and its Duties," &c., are of direct practical bearing on the present crisis, and deserve serious study. Nor is Literature neglected. As an instance, we may point to an article, "The Skeptics of the Waverly Novels," by the Belles Lettres Editor, C. G. LELAND, as exhibiting an acuteness and delicate critical insight, rarely met with in magazine articles.

—The Knickerbocker Magazine, (which is preserving its youth under the present active and efficient editor,) Godey's Lady's Book, and others, all present their peculiar claims to public support, and, we are happy to say, receive it.

—History of the Reformation in Europe, in the time of Calvin, by J. H. MERLE D'AUBIGNE, D. D., Vols. 1 and 2, Geneva and France; (ROBERT CARTER & BROTHERS, New-York.) In an introduction specially written for the American edition, the author explains how this, though a separate work, may be regarded as a second series of the great undertaking to which his life has been devoted—The History of the Reformation in the Sixteenth Century. Two elements are intimately combined in this narrative of the progress of the State of Geneva from mediæval chaos and darkness to light and civic freedom—political liberty and evangelical liberty. These elements Dr. D'AUBIGNE finds particularly embodied in the United States of America, and on their behalf he claims attention to the story of the heroic struggles of a Republic in past ages, when the devotion of life itself gave proof of "unalterable attachment to right, to national institutions, and to Law." More than forty years ago NEANDER, the great historian of the Church, proposed to the author to undertake a history of the Reformation of CALVIN; but though anxious to accomplish it, he felt that the subject might best be treated in its natural order, and that LUTHER and his times should be the first of the two pictures "so similar and yet so different," that he intended to sketch. How he has succeeded in the portion of his task already performed, is sufficiently known to the world. D'AUBIGNE now reaches the scene where his qualities as a historian are preeminent. A descendant from one of the French Protestant families that sought liberty and a home in the city of his birth and residence, a master of all the local knowledge that still connects Geneva with its great Liberator and Reformer, familiar with all the extant literature of the times, and materially yielding to the stock by unwearied researches among the Archives of Switzerland and France, he has produced a work full of matter perfectly new to the reader, vividly picturing the fierce elements thus convulsed modesty, the labors and perseverance of the early Hugenots, the series of events which paved the way for the career of CALVIN in Geneva, and the progress of his studies and mind, from youth to maturity. Succeeding volumes will trace the accomplishment of his purposes, with the loving and reverent care that the author bestows on every branch of his subject. These are already far advanced, and will be eagerly looked for by all.

—The Trapper's Daughter, a Story of the Early Mountains, by GUSTAVE AIMARD: PETERSON & BROTHERS, Philadelphia. Life in the Far West versus the favorite theme of the author, as the titles of fifteen former works appended to his name all relate to different phrases of this same subject. The book before us is full of the wildest incidents that a fertile imagination can create, and contains many thrilling scenes, described with a rough vigor that will insure its popularity among romance readers.

—By a late fire at Boston the stereotype plates of the Annual of Scientific Discovery, for 1863, were destroyed when just ready for printing off the edition. The publishers, Messrs. GOULD & LINCOLN, announce, however, that in spite of their unavoidable delay, they hope to have the work ready by April 20. It will be embellished with a fine steel portrait of Capt. JOHN ERICSSON. Messrs. GOULD & LINCOLN's list of new works in press embraces several important announcements, as The Life and Times of John Huss; or, The Bohemian Reformation of the Fifteenth Century, by Rev. E. H. GILLETT, in two volumes, royal 8vo.; Music of the Bible, with Lessons on Hebrew Poetry, by MOSES HUTCHINSON, with numerous illustrations, one volume; Woman and Her Saviour in Persia, by a lady missionary; three posthumous volumes by HUGH MILLER, to complete Messrs. G. A. L.'s uniform edition of his works, comprising his theological treatise on The Headship of Christ and the Rights of the Christian People—Latest Sketches, and Essays, Historical, Biographical, Social, &c. These are edited by PETER BAYNE and Mrs. MILLER, the author's widow. Prof. HENRION STEFFENS, of Berlin, Story of his Academical Career, translated by Wm. L. GAGE, and containing personal reminiscences of GOETHE, SCHILLER, SCHLEIERMACHER, NEANDER, SCHLEGEL, RICHTER, &c.; Letters on the Ministry of the Gospel, by Rev. FRANCIS WAYLAND, one volume, and several other original books of equal interest.

—The richness of Messrs. APPLETONS' list of announcements will be seen on reference to our late advertising columns. More than any other house, perhaps, they aim at an encyclopedic universality, and no good book seems to come amiss to them. If it meets the requirements of any class of the community. Thus, in the list referred to, we find alternately represented, theology, chemistry, history, fiction and its opposite, stern reality, as exemplified in The Tax Law, and one publication that it would puzzle a librarian to classify properly—Appon's Postage Stamp Album, and Catalogue of British and Foreign Postage Stamps. It would seem from this that the last European mania among collectors was spreading in this country. Few outsiders are aware of the intricacies of the subject, or would imagine that the literature of postage stamps includes more than fifty separate works, in English, French, German, &c., and a monthly magazine. Forgeries, it seems, of the scarcer varieties, are made to take in the visionary collector, and directions for detecting them are given with all the gravity that might be employed in distinguishing a counterfeit Rubens or a Raphael. A collector in London advertises that he possesses 1,260 varieties, and is anxious to increase the number. Among experts it is now a mooted question whether the United States postage currency come properly under the denomination of postage-stamps, and should form part of a collection. Dr. GRAY (the Naturalist) and Mr. CHARLES KNIGHT, dispute with Sir ROWLAND HILL upon the merit of originating this simple method of taxation, which has spread with unexampled rapidity all over the civilized world. In the financial year just closed, the actual expense or outlay on the paper, printing, gumming, &c., of postage-stamps in England, was £19,000; the result of course was more millions than we have space to figure out.

Decisions in Admiralty.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT.

Judge HALL has sent down decisions in the following cases, argued before him some time since:

EXCEPTIONS TO REPORT—DEMURRAGE—INTEREST.

The North River Staten Island Ferry Company vs. The Steamboat Hingham.—This case came up on exceptions to a Commissioner's report. The libel was filed to recover damages for a collision. The exceptions raised the question whether the libelants could recover for the detention of their vessel while being repaired; whether they could recover interest on the amount of repairs, and what amount they should recover.

Held by the Court—That the right of a libelant in a cause of damage to recover for the necessary detention of his vessel, if it shall appear that his vessel could have been profitably chartered or employed during such detention, is firmly established—(13 How. 101; 2 Wm. Rob., 279; 3 Wm. Rob., 223.)

That interest should be allowed on the actual cost of the necessary repairs from the time the payment therefor was actually made. The libelant is entitled to full indemnification for the injury sustained, and interest must be allowed, or he will not receive such indemnification. (3 Wm. Rob. 130; 10 How. 573, 574.)

That as to the sum allowed for repairs, although the evidence for the libelant is not as precise, and definite, and reliable as it might have been made by keeping a proper and separate account of the particular repairs rendered necessary by the collision; yet that of the claimants is still more unreliable.

That as to all questions of fact the report of the Commissioner must be sustained, unless it is quite apparent that he has erred.

That as to the rate of demurrage, although the libelant's evidence is not of the most satisfactory character, yet the claimants offered no evidence in contradiction; and, in the absence of such evidence, the report should not be disturbed.

Exceptions overruled and report confirmed.

For libelants, Messrs. Clark & Hale; for claimants, Mr. Williams.

COLLISION—STALE CLAIM.

Rufus J. Cheever, The Schooner Kate L. Bruce.—This is a case of collision. The collision occurred near Turtle Island, at the west end of Lake Erie, on May 16, 1856. The Bruce continued to run on the lakes, between Chicago and Buffalo, until about the 10th of May, 1856, when she was sent down the St. Lawrence and taken around to Boston, Mass. While at Montreal she was taken into possession by parties holding a mortgage upon her, and on the 3d of August, 1856, she was sold under the mortgage as free from incumbrances, and for her fair value, to a bona fide purchaser, without notice, who afterward, and before notice of any claim, paid the purchase money.

The notice of the sale under the mortgage was published in Buffalo, where the libelant resided, in a daily paper from the 5th of July to the 1st of August, but no notice of this claim was given at the sale.

The libelant claims as assignee of the owner of the vessel injured by the Bruce.

As a general rule, I have held that admiralty liens on vessels navigating our Western lakes must be proceeded within one year after such liens could have been prosecuted, or that they will be considered as stale, and will not be enforced against a bona fide purchaser for value without notice.

Under all the circumstances of this case, I think the claim should be considered a stale claim, which ought not to be enforced against the present owner of the Bruce.

Libel dismissed with costs.

Pleadings in Admiralty—Joint Negligence—Costs on Exceptions.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT.

Before Judge Betts.

John E. Williams et al. vs. The Steamtug C. Vanderbilt and the Floating Derrick Collins.—This was an action to recover the damages occasioned to the ship Chancellor, belonging to the libelants, by her being run into, while lying at a dock near the Navy-yard, by the floating derrick in tow of the steamtug. The libel alleged that the derrick, at the time of the collision, was in possession and under the control of employes of her owners, and also that the steamtug was under like direction and control of the same captain, and her movements were to be made to accommodate those of the derrick: nevertheless, to a certain extent, the steamtug was under the navigation and control of her own master, and claimed, on the trial, that the joint tort, if any, by the different vessels so employed, was the injurious impact upon said ship; yet that the aforesaid persons so carelessly, negligently and improperly towed, moved and navigated the derrick and tugboat, as that, by their concurrent negligence and want of skill, the derrick was run into the ship.

The claimants filed exceptions to this libel as insufficient, because: First, it does not specify the acts of negligence charged upon the derrick; second, it does not allege it was possible for the master to do act or manœuvre to have avoided the ship; third, it does not sufficiently set forth the manœuvres of the respective vessels, nor describe the method in which the ship was struck; and fourth, it prays a joint decree against the derrick and tug, but does not set forth facts showing that the collision was caused by their joint negligence.

By the Court—Should the view of the counsel for the claimant be correct, that the rules of pleading in Admiralty generally exact a specific detail of the movements made by a vessel collided against, for which she seeks compensation, and that she must show that all her own acts had been conformable to the laws of navigation, the doctrine would not apply to and govern the frame of the libel in this case, because the ship was passive in the transaction, and in no way contributed to the collision complained of, and is not called upon to excuse her connection with the event. She was moored at a wharf, and in no condition, by any active agency on her part, to induce or avoid the collision. Had she been in motion, it might be incumbent upon the complainants to justify or excuse, by pleadings in defence, the correctness of her course and proceedings.

The libel is free of error in that respect.

It is plain upon the adjudged cases that an injury by collision may be inflicted upon a vessel afloat or stationary by the combined action of moving objects, a tug and a tow propelled together, in which a common fault may be possible, through the tug's power, and a common responsibility thereby be incurred, and accordingly the mutual wrong may be alleged against them, and a joint recovery be had for the concurrent misfeasance or negligence of each in recompense of it. In general, the ambiguity lies in the question of a community of culpability and responsibility, and the litigation results in exonerating one of the accused objects, and fastening the entire liability upon its associate. This is wholly matter of proof upon the trial, and the pleading against the blameable party is not vitiated by alleging against his codefendant more than is verified upon the evidence.

I think the recent decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States, and the cases cited and recognized therein, amply establish the doctrine. (21 How. 546; 24 do. 110; 1 Black 69,) and sufficiently point out the restriction that the proofs must be kept within the scope of the allegations, and that the evidence must clearly establish whether the colliding vessels are mutually culpable, or the fault lies exclusively with one of them, and that point is determined by the proofs. The charge of fault may rightfully be made against the tug and barge conjointly or separately.

The exceptions to the libel are in the nature of a demurrer, and in my opinion, do not point out any reform necessary in the structure of the libel, much less do they amount to a bar of the action.

Exceptions overruled, with costs to be taxed. The question came up on appeal from the Clerk's taxation, whether the libelants were entitled to the docket fee allowed by the Statute "on a final hearing." The Court held that they were entitled to it.

For libelants, Messrs. Owen, Gray & Owen. For the derrick, Messrs. Benedict, Burr & Benedict.

Interesting to Gas Consumers—A Question of Surety.

SUPREME COURT—GENERAL TERM.

Before Justices Sutherland, Ingraham and Clerke.

The Manhattan Gas Light Company vs. Chas. Ely.—This was an action brought to recover the sum of 6879 56 for gas supplied one H. S. Crocker, from the 25th January, 1860, to the 16th of February, 1860, and for rent of meter during that time.

The action was brought against the defendant as surety, upon the following contract:

"To the Manhattan Gaslight Company:

The subscriber wishes to be supplied with gaslight and water in the premises No. 20 Gramercy Park-street, occupied by the Gramercy Park House, and hereby agrees to pay for the same on the general terms of the Company. Succeeds Mr. Davis from this date.

H. S. CROCKER.

CHARLES ELY, surety.

New-York, Feb. 15, 1854."

The gas was returned, and the Referee found that Crocker paid for all the gas consumed up to June, 1860, and that at that time he ceased to be the occupant of the house, being succeeded by one Charles W. Woodhull, who continued landlord and occupant up to February, 1860. Between Jan. 30 and Feb. 18, 1860, as measured, the gas bills for the house were made out in Crocker's name, weekly, and presented for payment, the checks of Woodhull being taken in payment for all but one. Those checks were not paid, and the last bill presented was not paid in any form.

The answer set up the Statute of Frauds; and as a further defence, denied that the gas for which the action was brought was furnished to Crocker, for whom the defendant, by his written contract, became surety.

On the facts stated, the Referee came to the conclusion that the defendant was not liable for the gas claimed in the complaint, assuming the legal validity of the defendant's agreement as set forth in the complaint.

The plaintiffs appealed, and the Court, per SUTHERLAND, J. now rendered the following decision:

On the facts found, it is clear that the Referee came to the correct conclusion. The first ground or reason stated by the Referee for this conclusion was sufficient to authorize it.

By signing the written instrument set out in the complaint as security, the defendant undertook to pay for gas and meter supplied to Crocker at the Gramercy Park House, if Crocker did not pay. He did not undertake to pay for gas furnished to Woodhull, or to any other person than Crocker. The gas furnished for the Gramercy Park House during the time mentioned in the complaint was in fact furnished to Woodhull, as the landlord or proprietor of the house.

It is immaterial in this case, between the plaintiffs and the surety, whether the plaintiffs had notice of the change in the proprietorship of the house or hotel, or whether, as between the plaintiffs and Crocker, on the facts found by the Referee, Crocker would be liable, on the ground that he did not give notice to the plaintiffs of the change of proprietorship, inasmuch as by no reasonable construction of the defendant's undertaking as security could he be held responsible for any default of Crocker in not giving such notice.

The undertaking of the defendant as surety was to be responsible for any default of Crocker in not paying for the gas furnished him. He did not undertake to be responsible for any default of Crocker in not giving notice of any change of the proprietorship of the hotel.

The Referee did not pass upon the question, whether the undertaking of the defendant was void by the Statute of Frauds. It is not necessary for us to pass upon it, or any other question in the case.

In think the judgment should be affirmed on the ground above stated.

Edward Fitch for appellant.

Luther R. Marsh for respondent.

Quarrel Between Brothers—Motion to Vacate an Order of Arrest.

SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS.

Before Justice Ingraham.

Ackroyd vs. Ackroyd.—The plaintiff and defendant are brothers. The defendant is Executor and Trustee of his father's estate, and, it is alleged, the plaintiff paid him, as such, the sum of $35,000, which the defendant, as claimed, has fraudulently converted to his own use. It appears that the parties were partners in business, and the defendant claims that the money was received only as a part of the partnership funds, and not in his capacity as Trustee of his father's estate, &c.

The case was stated in the Times of October 9, 1862.

The defendant was arrested, and many motions have been made to discharge the order, but as yet not successfully.

Another motion was now made on additional papers from England. Decision was reserved.

TUESDAY, March 31—P. M.

There was a further rise of 3½ ⅌ cent. in Gold Coin to-day, the price rising to 150 at the Second Regular Board, after ranging through the early Boards between 149@149½ ⅌ cent. One or two of the Street speculators defaulted on their contracts at the Public Board yesterday, the principal failure leaving about $400,000 of Gold undelivered at lower figures. This, of course, threw a number of parties, temporarily, in a false position, compelling immediate purchases for cash to fulfill their own deliveries. The price of Exchange for the Boston mail could not be made to keep pace with this additional rise in Gold, and the result is a dull packet, closing irregular on London—163@164½ ⅌ cent. There is abundant ease in the Money market, and confidence is again restored to certain classes of Merchant paper, which suffered last week from the fall in the General Trade as well as Gold markets. Money continues to pour into the Treasury at the rate of $900,000@$1,000,000 ⅌ day for the new loan of 1882, besides $250,000 to $300,000 ⅌ day left on deposit with the New-York office on 5 ⅌ cent. interest. The Customs and Internal Revenues also continue on a liberal scale. The Treasury will disburse to-morrow, or when called for, $3,066,000 in Gold for April interest on $64,600,000 7.30 ⅌ cent. Treasury Bonds.

The Stock Exchange opened firm on New York Central, Hudson and Harlem, but on Eries and the Western Shares, through the first regular Board, prices were somewhat irregular, the general temper of the market, however, being firm. At the 1 o'clock Public Board no particular change was noticed, but later in the afternoon the demand for Stocks generally was quite buoyant, and prices higher on all the New-York and Western Roads and on Pacific Mail. The most remarkable advance is in Harlem Common Shares, which from 46 ⅌ cent. in the forenoon for 4,500 shares, sold up to 50@51½ ⅌ cent., after the 3 o'clock adjourned, and the same at the 4 o'clock Public Board. A week ago the same stock fell off from 39 to 36@36½ ⅌ cent. The sales since, from day to day, have been unusually active; the whole movement exciting much surprise on the Street from its buoyancy. Equally firm in appearance is the demand for Hudson River, although sellers are not so free in putting out contracts since the price rose above par a second time, after being down to 96@96½ ⅌ cent. The recovery in New-York Central is very rapid, a difference this afternoon of 7 ⅌ cent. from the cheapest sales of last week. The Government Stocks and Treasury paper are in steady demand, and the Railway mortgages on the advance again.

At 4 o'clock the following quotations were made at the Public Board, in comparison with the prices last night, the market leaving off firm. Gold subsequently sold at 151 ⅌ cent., outside.

COUNTRY RESIDENCES.

LLEWELLYN PARK.

FOR SALE OR LEASE,

A TRACT OF LAND,

beautifully situated on the eastern slope of Orange Mountain, with a number finely diversified, commanding delightful views, bold, rocky cliffs, brooks of the purest spring water, picturesque old oaks, beeches and tulips, and a belt of the various native evergreens and deciduous trees.

The land cut and embellished with drives, walks, &c., in the modern natural style of landscape gardening, and the nerves have been spared in trees for the continuous use and enjoyment of the purchasers of the land lying within the Park.

This tract of land, containing about

200 ACRES,

has been divided into Villa Sites, of from 5 TO 10 ACRES EACH.

Twenty-five of these sites have been already improved, with houses in various styles of architecture.

It was selected with special reference to the wants of citizens doing business in the City, and yet wishing accessible, retired and healthful homes in the country. Sloping to the southeast, the best exposure for health, cultivation and protection from the winds of Winter, it is peculiarly adapted to catch the sea breezes which prevail in Summer.

The whole tract abounds in pure, soft, spring water.

It is believed that no spot within 20 miles of New-York is in all respects as healthy as the side of this mountain; it is almost the only locality so near the City where there is no fever and ague.

Purchasers of sites, desiring to build of stone, can obtain the material on the premises, free of charge.

The privacy of the Park and of all the sites is secured by a lodge and gate-keeper at the entrance on Valley Road, one mile from North Orange Railroad station. As we ascend along the Park-avenues—seven miles of which are completed—Newark, New-York and their Bays, Brooklyn, Staten Island and the Narrows are all taken at a glance. Upon reaching the top of the mountain, 700 feet above the level of the sea, a landscape more fine cannot be seen, and the view extends to the horizon. Cultivated fields, and country seats, villages, towns and cities, ponds, rivers and bays, with the Navesink hills at the south; Nyack mountain, Haverstraw peak, and the Highlands toward the north; with Long Island and what Greeley in the east, all lie spread before the eye. This panorama is acknowledged by all to be one of the finest in America.

LLEWELLYN PARK is less than one hour from New-York City via the Morris and Essex Railroad, eight trains per day each way, and via New-Jersey Railroad and Orange Horse Railroad, twenty trips each way daily.

For access, beauty and variety of scenery, for healthfulness and climate, for the intelligence and moral order of its population, in short, for all those considerations which combine to render a region attractive as a family residence, it is believed that the vicinity of Orange, especially the mountain side, possesses advantages not surpassed, if equaled, by any other place in the vicinity of New-York.

This is the cheapest country property so near the City, and a few eligible building sites still remain unsold, from one to ten acres each.

For maps, terms and particulars, apply to the proprietor,

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

The latest news from Vicksburgh via Memphis and Cairo, confirms the rebel news received via Fredericksburgh, of the attempt of two of our vessels to pass the batteries at Vicksburgh, and the sinking of one of them. The attempt, it appears, was made by the rams Lancaster and Switzerland. A heavy fire was opened upon them by the rebel batteries. The Lancaster was struck thirty times, and her entire bow was shot away, causing her to sink immediately, and to turn a complete somersault when she went down. All the crew except two, however, escaped. The Switzerland was disabled by a shot in her steam-drum, but she floated past the batteries, and was taken in tow by the Albatross, one of Admiral Farragut's vessels. The loss of life on board her is not known. There is also a partial confirmation of the rebel report that the expedition to the rear of Haines' Bluff had met with obstructions, and had turned back. It is said to have returned to Young's Point. There is nothing definite from the Yazoo Pass Expedition, though we have a rebel dispatch stating that our forces have again appeared in front of Fort Pemberton, and that firing was heard on the afternoon of the 24th ult.

Our Special Correspondence from Vicksburgh is to the 20th of March. The Canal at Lake Providence is a success, and our transports can pass around the rebel batteries at Vicksburgh. The Canal opposite the city too, will no doubt be perfectly successful. Notwithstanding the efforts of rebel sharpshooters to obstruct the work upon it, the excavation of the lower end was proceeding rapidly, two dredging machines being constantly at work. At the date of our correspondent's letter there was a depth of twelve feet in the Canal, and the rush of water through it was very powerful.

It was rumored at Memphis, on March 25, that the iron-clad Lafayette was expecting to make the attempt to run the rebel blockade at Vicksburgh, on the night of Saturday last, March 28.

The last rebel raid into Kentucky appears to have been an entire failure. A telegram from Cincinnati states that they are retreating rapidly, Pegram, at last accounts, being south of Stanford, hotly pursued, and reported to have been compelled to abandon his teams.

A dispatch from Murfreesboro states that the rebel Gen. Polk's corps, consisting of three divisions, has advanced to within nineteen miles of Murfreesboro. Our scouts report a scarcity of subsistence in the rebel army.

The Union Mass Meeting at the National Capital last evening was a great success. It was held under the auspices of the Mayor and City Councils.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE.

In the Senate, yesterday, the bill relative to securities in the custody of the Clerk of the Court of Appeals was ordered to a third reading. The bill extending the terms of office of the Heads of Departments in New-York was reported favorably. A bill was introduced authorizing associations to be formed under the Congressional Banking law, and to allow existing corporations to operate under said act.

In the Assembly, Mr. Dean's bill to amend the act establishing the Metropolitan Police District was reported favorably; also, the Senate bill amending the Brooklyn Charter. A resolution was introduced instructing the Judiciary Committee to report a bill forthwith for the relief of destitute families of volunteers. The bill prohibiting County Treasurers from using public moneys in their hands was passed. The resolution to amend the Constitution regarding the Court of Appeals, so as to provide for the appointment of Appeal Commissioners, was passed. A motion was adopted that the final vote on the bill allowing soldiers to vote shall be taken to-day. The New-York Bank Presidents sent in a memorial urging the payment of interest on the State debt in coin. The resolution making that provision was then called up and debated. An amendment was adopted providing that coin be paid to foreign creditors only.

FROM EUROPE.

By the arrival at this port of the steamship Hansa, late yesterday, we have advices from Europe three days later. She left Southampton on March 19. She brings intelligence via Havre, of further depredations by the pirate Alabama. A vessel arrived at that port on the 14th, and reported having spoken the Alabama on the 24th of February, and taken on board from her two Frenchmen belonging to the Olive Jane, from Bordeaux for New-York, which had been burnt on the 21st. On the same day the Alabama had burnt a large vessel bound from California to Queenstown—name not given. On the evening of the 22d the light of another burning vessel was seen on board the Gil Blas. A vessel arrived at Southampton reported that the Alabama was cruising off St. Lucia, W. I. The London Times announces the reception of the ratification of the rebel 7 ⅌ cent. Cotton loan of $3,000,000, and that it was to be brought out by certain parties named at Paris, Frankfort, Amsterdam, London and Liverpool. The Times comments on the National Banking law passed by the late Congress, and claims for Great Britain the credit of originating the idea upon which it is established. It considers the law the most important one passed, and the one which will do most to fuse and amalgamate the North. The Polish revolution seems to be progressing favorably for the Revolutionists. Polish affairs have been discussed by the French Senate, but no definite conclusion had been arrived at. The Dictator Langiewicz had accredited official agents to all Foreign Governments. A great battle was soon expected between the Poles, under Langiewicz, and 18,000 Russians. Under the stimulus of an increased demand, a further advance had taken place in the Liverpool Cotton market. Breadstuffs and Provisions were steady. Consols were quoted at 92¼@92½ for money.

GENERAL NEWS.

A large Union meeting of adopted citizens was held at the Cooper Institute last evening. Speeches were made in English by Mr. Charles Spencer and Dr. Koch; in French by Mr. Faider, and in German by Dr. Dosai and others. Resolutions were adopted protesting against foreign intervention in the affairs of this country, and pledging unconditional support to the Government.

At the meeting of the Board of Supervisors, yesterday, a petition from the Coroners to publish, in one or more of the dailies, descriptions of unknown persons found dead, was refused. A message was received from the Mayor, vetoing the resolution in favor of asking the Legislature to enact a law taxing bank stock and stock of incorporated companies in the hands of individuals, because the State already taxes bank stock, and if it were designed to tax United States stocks for local purposes, that the attempt to do so would be illegal and unpatriotic. Mr. Bleecker said the Mayor had mistaken the purpose of the Board, the design being to repeal the existing law taxing the banks, if the desired law taxing the stockholders should be passed, nor was it intended to tax United States stocks. Mr. Stewart said advantage had been taken of time to get a bill on the subject before the Legislature previous to March 15, on the presumption that the Mayor would approve the resolution. The Message lies over ten days, under the rule. By request of the Comptroller, the Board appropriated the balance of $11,025 of the fund of $72,034 28, raised by law in 1860 to meet the claims of the Record Commission, toward the payment of claims of contractors, judicially ordered, and amounting to $14,036 26. The deficiency, amounting to $3,011 26, it appears, is the amount of interest on claims heretofore paid on the order of Justice Sutherland, but which Justice Ingraham now decides to have been improperly allowed. The Board adjourned to 3 o'clock P. M. on Tuesday, April 14.

The work of consolidating decimated regiments has been commenced in the Army of the Rappahannock. Last week the Ninety-seventh and One Hundred and Fourth New-York were consolidated; the Ninety-seventh retaining their Colonel and Major, and the Lieutenant-Colonel of the One Hundred and Fourth retaining the same position in the new regiment.

The price of Gold Coin advanced 3¼ ⅌ cent. yesterday; sales at 150@151 ⅌ cent. Exchange relatively dull, 153@164½ ⅌ cent. Stocks buoyant and advancing.

Business was seriously impeded by the severe storm, yesterday. Prices of Breadstuffs advanced slightly, though transactions were restricted. Provisions and Cotton were in fair demand at buoyant rates. Groceries were quiet. Whisky was lightly dealt in. Tallow was less active. Oils, Metals, Naval Stores, Seeds, Spices, Wool and Tobacco were inactive. The public sale of Domestic Cotton goods was remarkably well attended and buyers bought freely at decidedly better prices than were realized at the latest auction sale last week. The freight market was steady, but rather dull.

The Live Stock markets show important changes this week. The total receipts are 6,000 less than last week, but the decline is on small stock, so that the actual amount of meat is but little less. Beeves number 4,583, which is a gain of 500 from last week's supply. This was not enough to prevent a rise in the market of ½c. to ¾c. ⅌ lb. The advance during the last week of Lent is partly owing to the short supply of previous weeks, and partly through fear of an insufficient number next week when the ban against meat-eating will be removed from a large population. Prices at the Forty-fourth-street yards, where 3,612 head were sold, ranged from 8½c. to 9c. ⅌ lb., net weight, for poor, 10c.@11c. for fair to good, and 12c.@13c. for extras. The average of the market was 10½c., and everything was sold off clean.....Sheep are 1c. ⅌ lb. lower, owing to a decline on wool and pelts. Receipts for the week, 4,382, not including some 1,500 which came in after the account was made up, and which depressed the market. Good fat sheep are now worth 9c. ⅌ lb. live weight.....Live hogs are ½c. lower, and have been selling slowly, but are a little quicker to-day. Prime corn-fed hogs are worth 5½c., and still-fed 5¼c.

Shall the Soldiers be Disfranchised?

In another column may be found a Bill, now before the Legislature of New-York, providing that every qualified and duly registered voter of the State, now in the military or naval service, shall be entitled to vote at every general State election hereafter held in the election district where he has a residence. It is very carefully guarded against all chance for fraud or other abuse, and is adapted to the sole purpose of enabling our gallant fellow-citizens, who are engaged in defending the integrity of the Republic, to exercise the most sacred right which the Republic guarantees. The Republican majority of the Committee have reported in favor of the bill; the Democratic minority have reported against it. We trust that the measure will be brought to a test vote in both branches at as early a day as possible. The army and the people are alike anxious to see what record the two great parties of this State will make on this question.

Of course the ground on which the opponents of the measure rest their objections is that of pretended unconstitutionality—their favorite ground from the outset in respect to all measures unfavorable to the peace policy. All the resources of special pleading are exhausted to make out that no vote can be valid under any circumstances unless cast within the geographical limits of the election district by the very hand of the voter. No attempt is made to show the justice or the fairness of denying the absent soldier his most valued franchise; the disposition is simply that of Shylock when he cried, "I stand here for law." It is a wonderfully scrupulous, a wonderfully law-abiding, conscience that blinds them to the spirit, and holds them down to the letter—that urges them to "cavil on the ninth part of a hair," sooner than give effect to the real purpose and intent of the Constitution by a liberal and fair construction of its restrictions.

But it is all an evasion. There is no serious difficulty in framing a bill that will enable the soldiers to vote, and yet satisfy every constitutional requirement to the last iota. We believe that this bill does it. If not, it can be made to do it by proper amendments. Mr. Frelinghuysen, the Attorney-General of New-Jersey, where the restrictions are similar to our own, after thorough examination, gave its late Legislature a very clear and decided opinion in favor of the entire constitutionality of a law enabling soldiers to vote out of the State. What is yet more authoritative, the Supreme Court of Wisconsin—the same Court whose decision against the right of the President to suspend habeas corpus was so highly extolled by the Democratic party—has just decided precisely to the same effect. The clauses of the Wisconsin Constitution bearing upon this matter are modeled after our own, which read as follows:

"Every male citizen of the age of twenty-one years, who shall have been an inhabitant of this State one year next preceding any election, and for the last four months a resident of the county where he may offer his vote, shall be entitled to vote at such election, in the election district of which he shall at the time be a resident, and not elsewhere, for all officers that now are or hereafter may be elective by the people. For the purpose of voting, no person shall be deemed to have gained or lost a residence by reason of his presence or absence, while employed in the service of the United States."

This language indicates a solicitude upon the part of the framers of the State Constitution to preserve to the soldier his citizenship, and all the privileges of citizenship. The simple question is whether in his necessary absence from his election district he may not choose his ballot, and cause it to be cast by other hands than his own? Is not such casting by his own authorized agent, who is in the election district, to all intents and purposes his own? Or at least may it not be legalized so as to make it his own, on the broad legal principle, Qui facit per alium, facit per se—he who does through another, himself does. It strikes us that not only every lawyer, but every man of plain common sense, must consider that under this bill a soldier, though a thousand miles away, may, as the Constitution provides, strictly "vote in the election district of which he shall at the time be a resident." If his being away a thousand miles does not affect his residence, it ought not to affect any of the rights of his residence. His selecting his vote in his camp in Virginia or Louisiana, and transmitting it to the ballot-box, is the one essential thing. How it gets into the box is a non-essential, provided it surely gets in as he sent it. The mere physical disability of the soldier to deposit it personally, on account of distance, is nothing—any more than the physical disability of the gallant Sergeant at the New England rooms, who has lost his two arms, should disfranchise him because he cannot personally hand his vote to the Inspector.

We cannot comprehend either the mind or the heart of any really loyal man who interposes these wretched quibbles and cavils to prevent his neighbor, who has answered his country's call, from exercising the same civil rights he himself enjoys, though he has not answered it. We should suppose the mere thought would overwhelm him with shame. Are not those officers and soldiers the very bravest, noblest, best patriots in the land? Do they not sacrifice immeasurably more than any other of our people for the common good? Have they not as much at stake in the policy of the Government? Is not their property as much subjected to taxation, their liberty and their life as much exposed to peril? Are not their opinions as intelligently formed and as honestly entertained? The man does not live who dares deny any of these things. And yet men who call themselves respectable, have the hardihood to try to torture the Constitution into some construction that shall reduce these citizen-soldiers from the rank of freemen to the condition of voiceless, voteless myrmidons. Even the rebel chiefs—soulless traitors as they are—have soul enough to leave their soldiers the right to vote. That right is exercised by every regiment in the Confederacy. It is only here we see the political depravity that would rob the soldier of his birthright.

The motives, of course, are obvious enough. The soldiers must be kept without the franchise, because, forsooth, they are almost to a man for fighting this war through to the utter destruction of the rebellion. They have expressed their sentiments in terms which have seared the Copperheads, as Hercules cauterized the hydra. They must be prevented from further mischief. It will not do to give them access to the ballot-box. This word has gone through the Copperhead councils, all over the breadth of the land. In every State, it has been the "peace Democracy" that have alone opposed the measures preserving the soldiers' franchise. In New-Jersey, Indiana and Illinois they have succeeded. In other States not. It cannot be too soon determined what the New-York Legislature is prepared to do on this subject. Does facing the enemy forfeit the franchise? That is the question. Get these peace-plotters on the record. We much mistake the character of the two hundred thousand New-York soldiers now in the field, and of the honest, patriotic body of the people who, though at home, are still for sustaining the Government, if the time does not come when every man in this Legislature who shall vote against a measure so distinctly dictated by every consideration of justice and equality, will not feel like fleeing to the clefts of the rocks. We repeat—Give the soldier his franchise, and fix his home enemies on the record.

Great Britain and the Rebellion.—We make some further extracts this morning from the volume of diplomatic correspondence recently sent in to the British Parliament. They throw a good deal of light on the real sentiments of the British Government toward this country, as well as on the steps taken by them to bring the war to a conclusion. The reports forwarded by Lord Lyons to his Government of the state of public sentiment here on passing events, seem to be thoroughly and uniformly colored by sympathy with secession. He speaks of the meeting of Governors at Altoona precisely as it was spoken of by Northern journals in the rebel interest, and magnifies all the difficulties and shortcomings of the Government precisely as they are magnified by its enemies.

Earl Russell's comment on the President's Emancipation Proclamation is worthy of special notice. It breathes the very spirit of hostility to every measure which the Government may adopt for quelling the rebellion. It is written professedly in the interest of Abolition, and the leading regret which his Lordship expresses is that it does not seem to have been prompted by love for the negro, but by a desire to save the Union. Earl Russell accordingly warns the Abolitionists of England that it "cannot and ought not to satisfy them." It uses the threat of emancipation as a penalty for continuing in rebellion. It is simply, he says, a war measure, and one, moreover, in his judgment, of questionable expediency. The tone of this dispatch clearly indicates an apprehension on the writer's part that a Proclamation of this kind would have a very marked effect on public sentiment in Great Britain, and on the Anti-Slavery sentiment of the United States; and its object was evidently to check this sentiment and prevent it from damaging the rebel cause. It affords fresh proof of the alacrity with which the British Government espouses either the Pro-Slavery or the Anti-Slavery cause, as the energencies of the rebel interest may require.

Rebel Evacuation of Virginia.

The report has come to us repeatedly, during the past month, that the rebels were evacuating Richmond. And within a week or ten days past we have had stories, more or less positive, that the greater part of Lee's army had been withdrawn from the line of the Rappahannock. The conclusion drawn from these facts, supposing them to be facts, was, that the rebels are about to abandon the entire State of Virginia, and fall back upon some interior State of the Confederacy. Our Washington correspondent communicated, on Monday, a military indorsement of these statements in regard to rebel intentions, as follows: "Information was received to-day from Fortress Monroe confirming the statement that the rebel Government is removing from Richmond all its military supplies. * * Gen. Dix believes they are preparing to leave Richmond, and has so informed the authorities here."

Gen. Dix is in a favorable position to be well informed on this subject, and his known prudence and sagacity entitle his opinions to great weight. Gen. Hooker, we learn, wholly disagrees from Gen. Dix; and Hooker, by the necessity of his command, is obliged to consider carefully the grounds of belief, pro and con, in the premises. The question, as thus raised between our two highest military officers, watching the movements of the rebels in Virginia, becomes deeply interesting, and its solution will be looked for with attention and anxiety by the Government and the public.

Arguing the question on merely general principles, we would have to conclude that Gen. Hooker's view is far the most reasonable. Why should the rebels evacuate any part of Virginia, and especially Richmond, powerfully defended as it is, the seat of many of their most valuable manufactories, and the Capital of their Confederacy besides? Richmond is less immediately threatened than it has been more than once heretofore, and its defences are certainly not weakened. Neither Gen. Hooker can march upon it from Fredericksburgh, nor Gen. Peck from Suffolk, without fighting serious battles with an intrenched foe, and suffering heavy losses. And, granting that either can capture the rebel Capital when the time comes for the effort, it is unquestionable that a mere garrison in Richmond could offer a stubborn and protracted resistance, and the main rebel army be withdrawn in whatever direction Southwest they might choose.

We can imagine no strategical advantages whatever in the rebels abandoning to easy capture not only their Capital but one of their richest and most powerful States, when by fighting they could render the capture both bloody and costly to the invading army. But apart from the lack of military sagacity in throwing away what might be well struggled for, there is a view of social disaster and disorganization, in case the State of Virginia is yielded to the National armies, that seems not to have been taken. Are the half million slaves of Virginia to be yielded up willingly to the operation of the President's Proclamation? And are the families of all the Virginia soldiers in the Confederate service to be subjected to the confiscations, levies and spoliations that would be their inevitable fate? The bodily removal of the immense slave population of Virginia to the already hungry Gulf States would involve a famine in the latter almost certainly—beside being quite impossible.

As Jeff. Davis cannot evacuate Virginia without giving up nearly all the negroes of the State, we do not think he would dare do it. It would certainly involve the detachment of Virginia from the Confederacy, in interest and in feeling. There are other reasons against the abandonment of this chief rebel State, that need not be enlarged on, but barely mentioned to show their great force. Virginia produces vast quantities of corn, flour, meat, coal and iron, to say nothing of soldiers, which are indispensable to the rebellion—the supplies of which, in the Gulf States, are becoming scarcer daily. The railroads centering at Richmond furnish one of the most important military lines of communication between the East and West rebel armies. East Tennessee, and North Carolina, would be wholly uncovered by the rebel evacuation of Virginia. The idea of reaching an "interior State" by leaving Virginia is a very simple delusion. For Virginia being given up and ceasing to be a border State, the farther States themselves would then become border States, and suffer all the calamities that have made life in them a torture and a ruin.

Failing to find any reason, founded on general principles involved in such a contest, in favor of the evacuation of Virginia by the rebels, we recur to the confidently expressed opinion of Gen. Dix that they are about to evacuate it, with renewed interest. If he is right, it is because of secret and unpropitious facts that must involve the fate of the rebellion. The rebels know that they have never regained a foot of any State that has been taken from them. If they abandon Virginia, it is lost to them forever. They are not able to lose it and live. The fact would be fatal to them in the estimation of foreign Powers, and destroy all prestige of strength that they are now able to keep up among their own people. We could only account for continued resistance after the loss of Virginia, on the principle that every culprit puts off as long as possible the fearful day of his final reckoning and punishment.

It may be thought by some that the reports of the evacuation of Richmond and Virginia are cunningly devised fables repeated by pretended "refugees," to lure the Union Commanders into some rash advance upon "abandoned outposts." This device would be too silly for perpetration. If the outposts are really abandoned, there need be no hurry in occupying them. If they are not, our armies are not yet ready to contest their possession. The whole question, consider it as we may, is portentous of a dark and embarrassing future for the rebels.

Moral Aspect of the Weather.—The month of March is given over to execration in the annals of every respectable or æsthetical nation. It has well sustained its reputation this year, in this country. It has been one of the dismalest and chilliest months that ever marked the calendar, and closed its unwelcome reign, yesterday, by a storm of snow, wind and rain overhead, and an ocean of slush and mud under foot, of still harrowing memory.

The month of March is harsh enough to well-sheltered lambs and kids, but it is fearfully destructive to those to whom its bleak winds are not tempered. And we doubt if the rebels are not in this latter category. The late month of March will long be remembered with a pang by rebel soldiers as well as rebel leaders. It has impaired transportation while they were almost perishing with hunger. It has compelled them to remain shivering on the defensive, while every day left them with less strength for the coming conflict. It has encouraged the ravages of disease. It has given time for financial disorders to open wider the gulfs yawning before the Confederacy; and it has allowed the "sober second thought" of the people of the loyal States to resume its sway.

And now, when April dries the soil, and a united North pours its replenished armies of enthusiastic soldiers upon the rebels, the latter will see that the very elements have been against them, and that nature has recorded a most emphatic abhorrence of their awful treason.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

The 30th of April Appointed by the President a Day of Fasting and Prayer.

A Proclamation

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES.

Whereas the Senate of the United States, devoutly recognizing the supreme authority and just government of Almighty God, in all the affairs of men and nations, has, by a resolution, requested the President to designate and set apart a day for National prayer and humiliation:

And whereas it is the duty of nations, as well as of men, to own their dependence upon the overruling power of God, to confess their sins and transgressions, in humble sorrow, yet with assured hope that genuine repentance will lead to mercy and pardon, and to recognize the sublime truths announced in the Holy Scriptures and proven by all history, that those nations only are blessed whose God is the Lord:

And, inasmuch as we know that, by His divine law, nations, like individuals, are subjected to punishments and chastisements in this world, may we not justly fear that the awful calamity of civil war, which now desolates the land, may be but a punishment inflicted upon us for our presumptuous sins, to the needful end of our national reformation as a whole people? We have been the recipients of the choicest bounties of Heaven. We have been preserved, these many years, in peace and prosperity. We have grown in numbers, wealth and power as no other nation has ever grown. But we have forgotten God. We have forgotten the gracious hand which preserved us in peace, and multiplied and enriched and strengthened us; and we have vainly imagined, in the fatuitousness of our hearts, that all these blessings were produced by some superior wisdom and virtue of our own. Intoxicated with unbroken success, we have become too self-sufficient to feel the necessity of redeeming and preserving grace, too proud to pray to the God that made us!

It behooves us, then, to humble ourselves before the offended Power, to confess our national sins, and to pray for clemency and forgiveness.

Now, therefore, in compliance with the request, and fully concurring in the views of the Senate, I do, by this my proclamation, designate and set apart Thursday, the 30th day of April, 1863, as a day of national humiliation, fasting, and prayer. And I do hereby request all the people to abstain from their ordinary secular pursuits, and to unite, at their several places of public worship and their respective homes, in keeping the day holy to the Lord, and devoted to the humble discharge of the religious duties proper to that solemn occasion.

All this being done in sincerity and truth, let us then rest humbly in the hope, authorized by the Divine teachings, that the united cry of the Nation will be heard on high, and answered with blessings, no less than the pardon of our national sins, and restoration of our now divided and suffering country to its former happy condition of unity and peace.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand, and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the City of Washington this thirtieth day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three, and of the Independence of the United States the eighty-seventh.

(L. S.) ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

By the President:
William H. Seward, Secretary of State.

OUR SPECIAL WASHINGTON DISPATCHES.

Washington, Tuesday, March 31.

THE GREAT UNION MEETING.

It is going on to 11 o'clock at night, and the great Union meeting, which was organized at 5 in the afternoon, is yet in full tide of enthusiastic progress. Every seat in the House of Representatives was filled. The rotunda and side passages were choked, and the Senate Chamber was also full. Mayor Wallach presided over the meeting in the Hall. The resolutions, offered by Gen. Rice, call on the Government to prosecute the war with the utmost energy, assuring it of the people's confidence and support, and expressing the utmost confidence in being able very soon to crush out the rebellion. The resolutions, received with the most enthusiastic favor, were frequently interrupted by applause. Every allusion to carrying on the war with vigor, and exercising severe measures to suppress treason in our midst, was especially applauded. Aldermen Sargent introduced an additional resolution, calling upon the Government to exercise arbitrary power over domestic treason, and complimenting the people of Baltimore and Gen. Schenck. Green Adams, of Kentucky, concluded an eloquent speech with the declaration that, as a Kentuckian and a slaveholder, he contended the Government had the power to deprive traitors not only of property, "niggers" and all, but of life. [Great cheering.] And in his opinion, so far from violating the Constitution, he performed only his duty. When Gen. Jackson had a man to hang, if he could not do so under one law, he would under another. There was no such loyalty to be found elsewhere on the earth as in Kentucky. He believed that the President had the right to do anything that he saw necessary to put down rebellion, and hoped he would exercise it. (Loud and prolonged cheering.)

Admiral Foote, Judge Carter, of the District Supreme Court, and Horace Maynard, of Tennessee, made war speeches of the most uncompromising character, and were followed by Gov. Andrew Johnson in a burst of eloquence seldom equaled in the Representatives' Hall. He invoked an out-and-out support of the Government, and condemned all thought of compromise.

The President and Secretaries Chase, Seward, Bates, Smith, and a very large number of Commissioners and Generals and Federal officers were upon the platform. There never was a meeting in Washington at all to be compared with this in numbers, respectability and enthusiasm. It has stirred every quarter of the city while it was in progress. Similar ones filled the Senate Hall and Rotunda, and made entrance into the Capitol anywhere almost impossible. The idea in all the speaking was the maintenance of the war to the end, last however long it might.

COMMEMORATING WITH THE ARMY.

Under the stringent enforcement of the order issued recently by Gen. Heintzelman, the disloyal residents of this vicinity find it almost impossible to maintain communication with their friends across the border. They have heretofore got across beyond the lines, trusting to their familiarity with cross-roads and near their homes to enable them to run our pickets on their return. Many who have thus attempted to back are unexpectedly shot out from their homes, readmission within the lines being made conditional upon taking the oath of allegiance, which they stubbornly refuse. Among those turned back yesterday was the widow of Jackson, the murderer of Ellsworth, who resides at Centreville.

CONTROLLER OF THE FINANCES.

The name of Hon. R. G. Stevenson, of Buffalo, has been mentioned, to-day, as the possible appointee to the vacant office of Comptroller of the Finances.

EXCHANGES.

Arrangements are completed for the exchange of all Union officers held by the rebels. Surg.-Gen. Hammond has instructed the surgeons in charge of hospitals to send to Baltimore immediately all rebel officers able to be removed, preparatory to sending them to City Point for exchange.

QUININE.

The day after the publication in the Times of the intention of the Medical Department to manufacture its own quinine, the price of that article declined 33 per cent., and within a day or two past the Department has received propositions from parties in New-York and Philadelphia, offering to furnish the drug at a reduction of 70 cents per ounce. Speculators in the article have lost heavily.

THE WAR COMMITTEE.

Gen. Franklin, in his testimony before the War Committee to-day, respecting the battle of Fredericksburgh, denied ever having received any orders from Gen. Burnside to reinforce Gen. Meade, and substantially pronounced Gen. Burnside's testimony on that point to be untrue. He confessed that at Antietam 7,000 of his men never fired a shot, and that none of Franklin's corps were engaged. Though a strong friend of McClellan's, his involuntary condemnation of his conduct after that battle, in failing to pursue the defeated enemy, is the most damaging yet presented against that General.

PROVOST-MARSHALS.

The Secretary of War has been engaged to-day with Col. Fry, the Provost-Marshal General, in making the appointments of Provost-Marshals for Pennsylvania. They will probably be announced to-morrow. The Secretary has in many districts appointed officers who have been wounded in the service and honorably discharged.

AN ESCAPE.

Seven Union prisoners, confined in the Libby Prison, at Richmond, recently escaped from there by the following clever ruse: The small-pox having broken out in the prison, to prevent its further spread, the patients, as soon as attacked, were removed, for medical treatment, to the pest-house, on the outskirts of the city. In order to get to the pest-house, which afforded a better opportunity to escape from than the prison, the men heated a wire and burned their faces in blotches, and, under pretence that they had the disease, asked to be removed to the pest-house. This was immediately done. After remaining in the hospital for a few hours, they managed to elude the vigilance of the guard and make good their escape.

PENSIONS.

The number of applications for widows and invalid pensions is enormous. Since the war began seventeen thousand of the former and eleven thousand of the latter have been received.

IMPORTANT TO PROMOTED OFFICERS.

War Department, Adjutant-General's Office, Washington, March 28.

General Orders No. 70.—To answer frequent inquiries made by general and other officers as to whom they shall report when newly promoted, it is hereby announced, that unless otherwise specially ordered, they will continue on duty in their respective departments or armies, and will be assigned by the Commanders thereof. By command of

Maj.-Gen. HALLECK.

L. Thomas, Adj.-Gen.

It is understood the divisions of this army will be speedily concentrated for an important expedition against the enemy. Gens. Vandever and Osea have been ordered to report to Gen. Herron. Gen. Cruelty of a Husband and Father.—An Irishman, named Henry Tyson, was taken into custody yesterday, by Capt. Brown, of the Seventeenth Precinct Police, upon a warrant issued by Coroner Naughton. The accused is charged with having assaulted his wife with a deadly weapon, thereby inflicting injuries upon her head and other parts of her person, from the effects of which, it is believed, she cannot recover. But the most aggravated part of the charge against Tyson is, that after having inflicted these severe injuries upon his wife, and while she was lying in bed unable to move on account of these cruelties, he took a step-child of his, aged about three years, and the only other member of the family, placed it upon a red hot stove, and held it there until a large portion of its body was burned to a crisp. The cries of the little sufferer brought some of the neighbors into the apartment, and the brutal father was thereupon compelled to desist from his barbarous work. Soon afterwards, however, he sought to complete his inhuman work by applying the burnt portion of the child's body to his mouth, and, with his teeth, tearing off large quantities of the crisped and blackened flesh. He then seized the child by the legs, swung it several times around his head, all the time making loud threats that he would dash its brains out against the wall. Some persons in an adjoining apartment interfered at this stage of his proceedings, and rescued the child. The offender is a carter by occupation, aged about 28, and with his wife and child, resided at No. 111 Third-street. He is held by the Coroner, to await the result of the injuries inflicted upon the two members of his family.

FROM THE STATE CAPITAL.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE LEGISLATURE.

SENATE.

ALBANY, Tuesday, March 31.

Bills were reported by the Grinding Committee, relative to the tare on casks and packages, which passed to third reading.

Relative to the securities in the custody of the Clerk of the Court of Appeals, which also passed to third reading.

The private bill in trade circles, Mr. Morgan introduced the General Stamp and Auction Bill.

Bills were favorably reported.

Extending the terms of the office of the Heads of Departments of New-York.

Relative to Remnant Pieces.

Incorporating the German American School Society of New-York.

Mr. Mecker introduced a bill authorizing associations to be formed under the Banking act of Congress, and to allow existing corporations to operate under said act.

EVENING SESSION.

The bill amending the Code of Procedure was debated and amended.

The following message was received from Gov. Seymour, accompanied by a letter from the Comptroller, requesting the Legislature to take immediate action in favor of paying interest on the State debt in coin:

To the Senate:

The State will be able to-morrow, for quarterly interest on its public debt, GOLD EN. Unpaid Interest on equal amount of gold will be due to-morrow. The general funded debt, $24,161,23; total, $48,322,46. If the Legislature shall direct the premium, at present rates, will amount to about $117,000. Of the whole amount of interest due—the bulk payable to other foreign stockholders—the bulk payable in the remote future. I feel it my duty to call the Legislature to determine if it intends to be faithful to specie or its equivalent. The time is short, and the question a grave one. For my own part, I cannot but think it more consistent with honor. Immediate provision should be made to meet the interest in gold. Only delivery, and I therefore recommend that you suspend the ordinary critical rules of procedure, and pass a direct measure for the relief of the credit of the State to provide for meeting payment in this manner. It is capable of demonstration that the market price of specie in any sense changes the obligations of the State to its creditors, who, at the time their loans were negotiated, no other form of payment was expected. The position of the State was well settled; the creditor paid a premium on these loans because he was assured his money was secure, payable in hard money, in coin or its equivalent. The State is in no way responsible for the variations in the value of gold to its foreign creditors. Public interest and honor, the interest of all always make the State a borrower. It is essential then to preserve the public credit of the Nation. The only way to do it is to be done by meeting all obligations in gold and silver, unmolested by perturbations in financial circles. In this way, since there is no merit in paying specie. It is in periods of severe trial like this that a State shows its power, and establishes its credit and secures the confidence of the public at home and abroad. In the French condition of the country who shall say what is money as? A period may arrive when the State may be compelled to rely upon its own resources. How important, in such a contingency that the high credit which New-York has ever maintained should be preserved. We are now passing through the ordeal of the slave and pampered men who have managed our finances in the past. In periods of the greatest depreciation of paper currency, they paid the interest and principal of public debt in coin. We are now reaping the fruits of their wise policy, and fail to profit by it. We are charged with the preservation of the public credit. The people have uniformly sustained those who have protected it. It is a subject about which they are and always have been jealous. It is remembered that any departure from this standard would forever impair our credit, and thereby cause a lasting injury to our great Commonwealth. The credit of the State stands as its representative. When it is once impaired it is paralyzed forever. Heretofore it has been protected with scrupulous care. We inherit a free Empire which, let it be our pride to our keeping. Let us take each responsibility as are needed to preserve it perfect as it came to us. New-York is pouring out its blood and its treasure to uphold the honor and dignity of the National power. Let us show that we are as true to our State as our ancestors were to our Union. The whole amount involved is not equal to one day's expenditure by the General Government. The failure of the most important State in the Union to maintain its credit will be a National calamity. It will place more than half the loss of battles or the destruction of many millions of treasure. (Signed) HORATIO SEYMOUR.

Mr. Murray called up the resolution, amended on motion of Mr. Pomeroy, to pay only foreign creditors in coin.

Mr. Pryer moved to amend to pay all creditors in coin. Lost, by the following vote:

Union Meeting of Adopted Citizens.
A HEARTY SUPPORT PLEDGED TO THE ADMINISTRATION.

A mass meeting of adopted citizens of various nationalities, but principally Germans and French, was held in the large hall of the Cooper Institute last evening, to give expression to their sentiments of devotion to the Union, and of their determination to stand by and support the Government in its efforts to maintain it. An audience of nearly a thousand persons was present, among whom were a large number of ladies. Dr. EDWARD KOCH presided, and on taking the Chair made a stirring address in favor of the Government.

The Chairman then proceeded to read the list of Vice-Presidents, comprising the names of the Vice-Presidents of the "Loyal National League," and an addition of a large number of prominent French and German citizens. He then introduced Chauncey S. Spencer, Esq., who made a brief but eloquent address, which was greeted with applause.

The next speaker was Mr. FAIRER, who addressed the meeting in French. His speech was strongly patriotic and elicited frequent applause. Strong resolutions, indorsing the efforts of the Government to crush the rebellion, were then read and adopted.

Dr. DOHAI, editor of the New-Yorker Demokrat, addressed the meeting, first in German and then in English. And others followed, who spoke in French and German, after which the meeting adjourned.

Distinguished Arrival from the South.

Among the passengers by the steamer McClellan, from New-Orleans, which arrived here on Monday, were the celebrated high-mettled racers Panic, Ben West, Frank Cheatham and Behemoth; and these were accompanied also by a three-year old colt by Grey Medoc, and a filly by Glenoe. All of these fine animals were bought under a sale of confiscated goods for GEORGE WILKES, Editor of the Spirit of the Times of this City. They made the journey safely, and arrived in excellent condition, with the exception of Behemoth, who caught a severe cold, and perhaps may be lost. These horses, being all stallions but one, are a great acquisition to the North, and Mr. WILKES may boast of the possession of a "string" equal in merit and value to any ever possessed by one owner in the United States—not excepting old Col. Jerome, the Napoleon of the Turf.

DEAFNESS
NOISES IN THE HEAD,
Diseases of the Eye, Ear & Throat,
CATARRH CURED
BY
DR. VON EISENBERG.
From the Journal of Commerce.

ELECTRIC EYES FOR THE DEAF.—An instrument called Dr. Von Eisenberg's Air Passage Expander and Exploder, a gigantic machine, weighing nearly five hundred pounds, about five feet in height, a most wonderful apparatus for restoring sight and hearing, has just arrived in New-York. Dr. Von Eisenberg, the inventor, Oculist and Aurist, and will be on exhibition at his Doctor's office, No. 816 Broadway, for few days previous to its sale. The instrument is constructed chiefly on the most scientific principles. To give a detailed description would require a great space than we can now spare. Our Oculist and Aurist seems to do everything in the line of his profession on a gigantic scale. The new instrument for restoring hearing to the deaf and sight to the blind is so constructed that it cannot fail to open the most obstructed air passages. His new consulting rooms, No. 816 Broadway, are correspondingly magnificent, and his practice as Aurist and Oculist large and extensively successful.

From the New-York Evening Express, Feb. 14, 1863.

SATISFACTORY AMONG THE DEAF.—The continued skill of Dr. Von Eisenberg, the far-famed Oculist and Aurist, of No. 816 Broadway, has made quite a sensation among the Deaf and Blind by his wonderful cures, which extract the Deaf, Blind and those suffering from Chronic Catarrh, from all parts of the Union to his office. The number of his certificates of really wonderful cures speak daily. For the benefit of sufferers, we submit the following, which requires no comment:

NEW-YORK, Feb. 9, 1863.

I have been completely deaf in one ear, and partially so in the other, for above seventeen years, with a disagreeable discharge from both ears, combined with continual rumbling noises in the head, for which I have been treated by a most eminent practitioner in the City without the slightest relief.

I consulted Dr. Von Eisenberg, but I must candidly say that I had no faith in his success when I did so. It is, therefore, due to Dr. Von Eisenberg to acknowledge that I am entirely cured relief, that he displayed that skill and knowledge which have procured for him such an unrivaled reputation. As I have had an opportunity of comparing his mode of treatment with that of others, I can truly state that it is not only superior, but the principles which direct his mode of restoring the hearing are, to my opinion, certain.

JOHN TAYLOR,
No. 19 Livingston-st., Brooklyn.

NEW-YORK, July 10, 1862.

This certifies that my mother has been for some time afflicted with partial deafness, suffering from pain, and rumbling noises in the head, together with other indications of a total loss of hearing. Dr. Von Eisenberg restored her to perfect health, removed the deafness, rumbling, and all without pain. It is with grateful thanks that I give this testimony to his skill.

CARROLL J. POST, No. 20 South-st.

NEW-YORK, Nov. 18, 1862.

DR. VON EISENBERG, M. D.—Dear Doctor: I have been afflicted with total deafness, and was induced to pay you a visit. No one can imagine my delight when after some months' treatment I could hear sounds. I am now perfectly cured, and shall ever remember you as one for which I feel very grateful. After being totally deaf—almost shut out from the pleasure of using so necessary a sense—to have it returned, and to hear so distinctly, reflects great credit on you for your skill and attention. I hope, for your sake, I may thank you for what I can so truly appreciate. I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

EDWARD TEMPLE HARRISON.

NEW-YORK, Nov. 4, 1862.

DR. VON EISENBERG—Dear Sir: Before taking leave of you, after your most successful operation on my ear, allow me to express my sincere thanks that, by your matchless skill, I have been restored to hearing in that ear, and only a pleasure of which I have long been deprived—over a year. May you be rewarded by being enabled to confer many similar, to benefit other sufferers, and to your own content.

Allow me to present my kindest regards, and assure you of my grateful remembrance. Sincerely,

A. McDONALD REYNOLDS,
Captain Marines, United States.

CHRONIC CATARRH CURED.
READ!

NEW-YORK, March 20, 1863.

"This is to certify, that I have suffered from very severe CHRONIC CATARRH, with a dull heaviness in the head. I felt as none could who have not experienced it by continual pressure of the throat, the chills stealing over me with occasional hot flushes, a great tightness of the chest and pain, so much so, that every one thought it was consumption. Having heard of the great cures performed by Dr. Von Eisenberg, I consulted with him, and was cured in a cure. I am very happy to be enabled to add my testimonial to the great number already in the Doctor's possession, as to his scientific and successful mode of treatment, as he has shown in my case that skill and knowledge which have procured for him such a reputation. I am so entirely restored to perfect health that I do most sincerely recommend all sufferers from CHRONIC CATARRH and SORE THROAT to apply at once to Dr. Von Eisenberg with a certainty of being cured."

TESTIMONY OF MR. P. G. SMITH—WHO is well known and highly respected in the region, where he resides:

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 19, 1862.

S. W. Fowle & Co.:

DEAR SIR: Having for the last fourteen years used Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry in my family—always with the best success, and confidently believing that it has on several occasions saved my life—I give it as my opinion that it is the best remedy in use for diseases of the throat and lungs. About two years since my youngest son, then fifteen years of age, took a violent cold, which settled on his lungs. So rapid and severe was the progress of the disease, that we became very much alarmed. We commenced giving him the Balsam, and continued to do so until five bottles were used, when this dangerous attack was removed. Last year he was again seized with a violent cough and cold, and believing his lungs to be diseased, we applied to the late Dr. J. B. Hawley, one of our most distinguished physicians, for an examination, the result of which was that his lungs were pronounced diseased. On learning that we had made use of the Balsam, he advised us to continue to do so, which we did, and in the course of a few days the health of my son was entirely restored. Feeling under obligations for the benefits derived from this great remedy, I cheerfully recommend it to all who suffer from diseases of the throat and lungs. Yours, P. G. SMITH.

B.—Ladies who desire to avail themselves of Madame DESPARD'S valuable, certain and safe mode of removing obstructions, suppressions, &c., &c., without the use of medicine, can do so at one interview. Residence, No. 191 6th-av., opposite 6th-st.

DR. HUNTER'S RED DROP RESTORES the vigor of youth in four days. Restores manhood to the most shattered system. No. 9 Division-st., New-York. Beware of the many imposters of bogus Dr. Hunter. The City is full of them, up in every trick to rob. Dr. HUNTER of his great reputation as a skillful and reliable physician. He has no other office but No. 9 Division-st. Established in 1834.

SOMETHING FOR EVERY LADY.—DR. WARD'S Great Female Benefactor or Golden Regulating Pills. Infallible in correcting, regulating and removing all obstructions, from whatever cause, designed for purely legitimate purposes—to restore the menstrual fluid—and they will never disappoint the anxious patient. Office, No. 12 Leight-st., where Dr. WARD can be consulted, confidentially, day and evening.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU—SOLD by H. C. OAKLEY, No. 11 Park-row.

PRIVATE CONSULTATION.—DR. HUNTER has, for thirty years, confined his attention to diseases of a certain class, in which he has treated no less than fifty thousand cases, without an instance of failure. His great remedy, HUNTER'S RED DROP, cures certain diseases, when all other regular treatment and all other remedies fail; cures without dieting or restriction in the habits of the patient; cures without the disgusting and nauseating effects of all other remedies; cures in new cases in less than six hours; cures without the diminished component effects of mercury, but possesses the peculiarly valuable property of annihilating the rank and poisonous fluid that the blood is sure to absorb, unless his remedy is used. That is what he claims for it, and what no other will accomplish. Its value in this respect has become so well known, that scientific men in every department of medical knowledge begin to appreciate it, for hardly a week passes that he is not consulted by druggists, chemists and physicians, in regard to some pitiful patient who has exhausted the whole fleet of the faculty, and still the disease will appear. Its popularity is so great, that there is not a quack doctor in the City that has not attempted to imitate it, and when they find their lies are not so easily swallowed, they then pretend that they can make it. It is $1 a vial, and cannot be obtained genuine anywhere but at the old office, No. 9 Division-st. Book for 15 three-cent stamps, 200 pages, 100 colored illustrations. The best expt out.

CAUTION TO LADIES.

Madame RESTELL, Female Physician, No. 162 Chambers-street, deems it her duty to caution ladies against impostors, who appropriate her advertisements, word for word, merely substituting some ignorant and wholly irresponsible person as "Madame."

These persons have spurious "Female Monthly Pills" and other poisonous compounds to deceive the unwary or the easily duped, as well of their means as of their health.

That ladies may avoid these impositions, Madame Restell feels called upon to give this caution.

TO THE AFFLICTED.—INSANITY, RHEUMATISM AND CONSUMPTION.—The curability of these maladies has, in very many instances, defied the utmost skill of our best physicians; but under the treatment specially given in the above-named diseases at the Samaritan Healing Institute, wonderful cures have been effected. Testimonials of the same by those who have already been healed will be cheerfully given by consulting the resident physician, at his rooms, No. 165 6th-st., between Broadway and 4th-av., opposite Clinton Hall.

IMPORTANT TO FEMALES.—DISEASES OF females exclusively treated by Dr. THIERS, No. 1,351 Broadway, (near 36th-st.,) New-York. Remedies for female complaints from $5 to $5. Relief guaranteed in all cases. Consultation free. Medicines sent everywhere. Patients from a distance provided with private board, nursing and exclusive attendance. Send stamp for circular, and escape quackery. Medicines sent per mail.

Sent free by mail on receipt of $1. Sold by all druggists. Address Dr. W. H. HALL, No. 620 Broadway, New-York.

ANOTHER INTERCEPTED REBEL DISPATCH

The Confederacy and the Slave-trade.

JUDAH P. BENJAMIN'S VIEWS.

The following document, addressed by Mr. JUDAH P. BENJAMIN, the Confederate "Secretary of State," to Hon. L. Q. C. LAMAR, the Confederate "Commissioner" at St. Petersburgh, has lately come into the possession of our Government. It is published for the information of all concerned, as serving to show the prudent and significant reserve which the Confederate authorities prescribe to themselves in refusing to enter into any engagements with foreign nations not to revive the African slave-trade.

CONFEDERATE STATES OF AMERICA.
DEPARTMENT OF STATE, RICHMOND, Jan. 15, 1863.

SIR: It has been suggested to this Government, from a source of unquestionable authenticity, that, after the recognition of our independence by the European Powers, an expectation is generally entertained by them that, in our treaties of amity and commerce, a clause will be introduced making stipulations against the African Slave-trade. It is even thought that neutral Powers may be inclined to insist upon the insertion of such a clause as a sine qua non.

You are well aware how firmly fixed is our Constitution is the policy of this Confederacy against the opening of that trade, but we are informed that false and malicious suggestions have been made by the agents of the United States at European Courts of our intention to change our Constitution as soon as peace is restored, and of authorizing the importation of slaves from Africa. If, therefore, you should find, in our intercourse with the Cabinet to which you are accredited, that any such impressions are entertained, you will use every proper effort to remove them, and if an attempt be made to introduce into any treaty which you may be charged with negotiating stipulations on the subject last mentioned, you will assume, in behalf of your Government, the position which, under the direction of the President, I now proceed to develop.

The Constitution of the Confederate States is an agreement made between independent States. By its terms all the powers of Government are separated into classes as follows, viz.:

1. Such powers as the States delegate to the General Government.

2. Such powers as the States agree to refrain from exercising, although they do not delegate them to the General Government.

3. Such powers as the States, without delegating them to the General Government, thought proper to exercise by direct agreement between themselves contained in the Constitution.

4. All remaining powers of sovereignty, which not being delegated to the Confederate States by the Constitution nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people respectively.

On the formation of the Constitution, the States thought proper to prevent all possible future discussions on the subject of Slavery, by the direct exercise of their own power, and delegated no authority to the Confederate Government, save immaterial exceptions, presently to be noticed.

Especially in relation to the importation of African negroes was it deemed important by the States that no power to permit it should exist in the Confederate Government. The States, by the Constitution, which is a treaty between themselves of the most solemn character that States can make, unanimously stipulated "that the importation of negroes of the African race from any foreign country other than the Slaveholding States or Territories of the United States of America is hereby forbidden; and Congress is required to pass such laws as shall effectually prevent the same." (Art. 1, sec. 9, par. 1.)

It will thus be seen that no power is delegated to the Confederate Government over this subject, but that it is decided in the third class above referred to, of powers exercised directly by the States.

It is true that the duty is imposed on Congress to pass laws and render effectual the prohibition above quoted. But this very imposition of a duty on Congress is the strongest proof of the absence of power in the President and Senate alone, who are vested with authority to make treaties. In a word, as the only provision on the subject direct the two branches of the Legislative Department, in conjunction with the President, to pass laws on this subject, it is out of the power of the President aided by one branch of the Legislative Department to control the same subject by treaties; for there is not only an absence of express delegation of authority to the treaty-making power, which alone would suffice to prevent the exercise of such authority, but there is the implied prohibition resulting from the fact that all duty on the subject is imposed on a different branch of the Government.

I need scarcely enlarge upon the familiar principle that authority expressly delegated to Congress cannot be assumed in our Government by the treaty-making power. The authority to levy and collect taxes, to coin money, to declare war, &c., &c., are ready examples, and you can be at no loss for argument or illustration in support of so well recognized a principle.

The view above expressed is further enforced by the clause in the Constitution which follows immediately that which has already been quoted. The second paragraph of the same section provides that "Congress shall also have power to prohibit the introduction of slaves from any State not a member of or Territory not belonging to this Confederacy." Here there is no direct exercise of power by the States which formed our Constitution, but an express delegation to Congress. It is thus seen, that while the States were willing to trust Congress with the power to prohibit the introduction of African slaves from the United States, they were not willing to trust it with the power of prohibiting their introduction from any other quarter, but determined to insure the execution of their will by a direct interposition of their [our] power.

Moreover, any attempt on the part of the treaty-making power of the Government to prohibit the African slave-trade, in addition to insuperable objections above suggested, would leave open the implication that the same power has authority to permit such introduction. No such implication can be sanctioned by us. The Government unequivocally and absolutely denies its possession of any power whatever over the subject, and cannot entertain any proposition in relation to it.

While it is totally beneath the dignity of this Government to give assurances for the purpose of vindicating itself from any unworthy suspicions of its good faith on this subject that may be disseminated by the agents of the United States, it may not be improper that you should point out the superior efficacy of our constitutional provision to any treaty stipulations we could make. The Constitution is itself a treaty between the States of such binding force that it cannot be changed or abrogated without the deliberate and concurrent action of nine out of the thirteen States that compose the Confederacy. A treaty might be abrogated by a party temporarily in power in our country, at the sole risk of disturbing amicable relations with a foreign Power. The Constitution, unless by approach to unanimity, could not be changed without the destruction of this Government itself; and even should it be possible hereafter to procure the number of States necessary to change it, the forms and delays designedly interposed by the framers to check rash innovations, would give ample time for the most mature deliberation and for strenuous resistance on the part of those opposed to such change.

After all, it is scarcely the part of wisdom to attempt to impose restraint on the actions or conduct of men for all future time. The policy of this Confederacy is its fixed and immutable one on this subject as the imperfection of human nature permits human resolves to be. No additional agreement, treaties or stipulations can commit these States to the prohibition of the African Slave-trade with more binding efficacy than those they have themselves devised. A just and generous confidence in their good faith on this subject exhibited by friendly Powers will be far more efficacious than persistent efforts to induce this Government to assume the exercise of powers which it does not possess, and to bind the Confederacy by ties which would have no constitutional validity. We trust, therefore, that no unnecessary discussions on this matter will be introduced into your negotiations. If, unfortunately, this reliance should prove ill-founded, you will decline continuing negotiations on your side, and transfer them to us at home, where, in such event, they could be conducted with greater facility and advantage, under the direct supervision of the President.

With great respect, your obedient servant,
J. P. BENJAMIN, Secretary of State.

There is nothing new regarding the threatened demonstration by Secessionists on the Mare Island Navy-yard and Benecia Arsenal. The public are informed of no circumstances which warranted the alarm manifested by the authorities, although all recommend their disposition to take every precaution to guard against possible danger. There are many Secessionists in Napa County, though not presumable enough to encourage the most daring to take up arms against the authorities. With ordinary vigilance at guarding the fort, armory and the public property, no one apprehends danger from the Secessionists within the State. The Segfried remains at Mare Island.

THE PROPOSALS OF MEDIATION.

Lord Lyons to Earl Russell.
[Extract.]
WASHINGTON, Nov. 22, 1862.

The intelligence that France had proposed to Great Britain and Russia to join her in advising the belligerents in this country to agree to an armistice, reached New-York by telegraph from Cape Race on the 25th inst. The substance of your Lordship's answer was received at the same time. Yesterday the text of the French proposal, of your Lordship's answer, and of the principal part of the Russian answer, was forwarded to New-York by telegraph from Halifax.

It is to be observed that in every one of the newspapers I send, foreign intervention is distinctly repudiated. It is very true that the leaders of the political parties do not always put forth in the newspapers exactly the same sentiments which they entertain and even express in private. Still the unanimity of the Press on the present occasion shows at least that this is not a time at which public opinion would force the acceptance of foreign mediation upon a reluctant Cabinet.

Lord Lyons to Earl Russell.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 2, 1862.

MY LORD: Mr. SEWARD without my having in any way led to the subject, spoke to me yesterday of the proposal made by France to Great Britain and Russia to unite in advising the belligerents in this country to agree to an armistice.

Mr. SEWARD said that he perceived that some of the European Powers, all professing the most friendly feelings to this country, had been discussing its affairs among themselves without taking the Cabinet of Washington into their counsels. However, as no official communication had been made to this Government, it was not called upon to give any opinion, or to say what it should or should not have done if any proposal had been made to it. If any of the European Powers concerned should offer explanations on the subject, this Government would receive them respectfully, but not be disposed to express any opinion on them.

Mr. SEWARD begged me to acquaint M. MASSEMA with what he had said. I accordingly went from Mr. SEWARD to M. MASSEMA, and repeated to him what Mr. SEWARD had just stated to me. I have, &c.,

Earl Russell to Lord Lyons.
FOREIGN OFFICE, Dec. 19, 1862.

MY LORD: I have received your Lordship's dispatch of the 2d instant, and with respect to Mr. SEWARD's remarks, unprovoked on your part, that he perceived that some of the European Powers, all professing the most friendly feelings to the United States, had been discussing its affairs among themselves without taking the Cabinet of Washington into their counsels, I have to instruct you to take an opportunity of observing to Mr. SEWARD that without taking other reasons into consideration, the perusal of the accounts of the distress in Lancashire, owing to the want of cotton, which he will find in all the newspapers, will furnish him with reason enough for the discussion of American affairs in Europe.

I am, &c., (Signed,) RUSSELL.

ATTEMPTS OF ENGLISH MERCHANTS TO PROCURE COTTON.

Lord Lyons to Earl Russell.
[Extract.]
WASHINGTON, Dec. 19, 1862.

Mr. MOORE, Her Majesty's Consul at Richmond, having been informed that only Consuls in person would be allowed to pass into the Northern States, deemed it to be his duty, at great personal inconvenience, to bring me himself the dispatches for your Lordship and this Legation, which had been sent him from the other British Consulates in the Southern States. He arrived here on the 15th inst., and set out on his return to his post this morning.

From information which he gave me, it appeared evident that a very great desire existed on the part both of the so-called Confederate Government, and of private persons in the South, to make large sales of cotton to neutral purchasers, and that the Confederate authorities were prepared to guarantee the safe transport of neutral cotton till it had passed beyond their own military lines. It seemed that they had even gone so far as to urge Mr. MOORE to convey proposals from them to English merchants. The Mr. MOORE, having no means of communicating with the Northern States or with Europe, except those afforded by the United States Government in virtue of its understanding with the British and French Legations here, could not do without a breach of good faith, and he, of course, refused to listen to the solicitations which were made to him; nor, indeed, could the proposals, if made, have led under present circumstances to any practical result, for it appears that the Confederates choose rather to burn their cotton than to run any risk of its falling into the hands of the Federals, while foreign merchants will, of course, not risk their money unless they have a sufficient guarantee that they shall at least be able to keep, if they be not able to export, their purchases.

I lost no time in making M. MASSEMA acquainted with the information given me by Mr. MOORE, and I asked him whether he thought there was any mode, consistent with the maintenance of our good faith with this Government, in which we could turn to account, for the benefit of our respective countries, the growing desire of the Confederates to dispose of their cotton to neutrals. The only plan which we could devise was to endeavor to obtain from the United States Government some definite assurance calculated to give confidence both to buyers and sellers of cotton in the South. We had very little hope of succeeding, at the moment, in eliciting any declaration sufficiently formal and explicit, but we agreed that there could be no harm in my mentioning to Mr. SEWARD the nature of the information which had reached me, and endeavoring to find out from him exactly what security the United States Government would finally give to Neutral buyers, and what facilities it would afford for the exportation of their purchases.

I accordingly went to Mr. SEWARD on the 16th inst., and said to him that I considered that he was not unaware that the Confederates made England and France most tempting offers of cotton. They said, "Here is cotton in abundance; buy it, or we shall be obliged to burn it." I observed that this course could not but be successful, in one respect at least, unless the Federal Government took means to defeat it. It could not but raise bitter feelings toward the United States in Europe. Could not Mr. SEWARD give me some assurance which would tend to diminish such feelings?

I observed to Mr. SEWARD that what the Confederates wanted was to be assured that cotton sold to neutrals would not fall into the hands of United States officers.

To this Mr. SEWARD answered that the offers of the rebels were insidious. Why had not cotton been already sold to neutrals? Why had it not been brought to market? The Government of the United States had given every facility; it had declared that it would respect cotton, the property of neutrals, however obtained; it had even at one time conceded that cotton bought in the South might be paid for in gold instead of in United States currency; that no inquiry should be made as to how the gold had been conveyed to the insurgent States; no question asked as to who the cotton had been purchased from. A neutral would have had nothing to do but to take his cotton to New-Orleans and export it. Still no cotton had appeared. The only effect of all these concessions had been to demoralize the army.

I asked Mr. SEWARD whether all these concessions had been recorded in official documents so distinctly as to leave no doubt of their existence or their extent. The communications concerning them had, I observed, taken place during my absence. I might not be fully acquainted with them, but certainly the impression on my mind was that the facilities for bringing and exporting cotton had been by no means so great as he represented them. I would ask him two questions. Was there any formal declaration that neutral cotton would be respected, so clear as to be calculated to remove all doubt from the minds of neutral buyers, as well as Confederate sellers? Again, might an English merchant at this moment safely buy a large quantity of cotton in the Southern States, and send it to New-Orleans, with a certainty that he would be allowed to export it?

Mr. SEWARD observed, with regard to the first question, that neutral property was guaranteed by assurances given over and over again by this Government. To the second question, Gen. BUTLER's proclamation would, he said, have been a sufficient answer; but the case might now be altered, for Gen. BANKS had probably by this time superseded Gen. BUTLER, and the new plan might have been put in force.

I communicated to M. MASSEMA what Mr. SEWARD had said, and, after some consideration, we came to the conclusion that the only thing which would have any chance of being attended with a practical result would be to endeavor to obtain from Mr. SEWARD some assurance in writing.

On reflection, however, I became convinced that a mere informal declaration from Mr. SEWARD would not be sufficient. I could not feel sure that such a document would be held to be binding by all the Departments of the Government. I remembered with regard to the proclamation of Gen. BUTLER, on which Mr. SEWARD laid so much stress, that the very moment at which Mr. SEWARD had accepted from me pressing compliments on this proclamation, he had, without his knowledge, been issued, which modified the concessions made by it altogether materially in practice. I came, therefore, to the conclusion that nothing would be gained unless I procured a regular formal document declaring the intentions of the whole Government. With this view I wrote to Mr. SEWARD the letter of which a copy is inclosed. It was read and approved by M. MASSEMA on his way to the State Department.

I am not sanguine as to the success of this or any other attempt to obtain practical facilities for the exportation of cotton. It is difficult, if not impossible, for the Government of the United States to devise any plan by which none of cotton can be effected in the South without occasioning a very material addition to the resources of the so-called Confederate Government. This is to the United States a certain and immediate evil. Against it, they have only to set the remote and uncertain danger that the want of cotton may drive the European Powers to take part with the South in the war.

[Inclosure.]
Lord Lyons to Mr. Seward.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 16, 1862.

SIR: Mr. MOORE, our Consul at Richmond, brought me himself the last dispatches from the other Consuls in the South, having been informed that only Consuls in person would be allowed to pass. He tells me that English and French merchants are afraid to buy cotton, and that people in the South are unwilling to sell it, because confidence is not felt that the property of neutrals will be respected by the Federal authorities. Is the Government of the United States willing to give an assurance, in a distinct and positive shape, that its officers will, without reservation, respect cotton, the property of neutrals?

From my conversations with you, I understand that this Government will not interfere with cotton which is (or which shall become) the property of neutrals, nor deprive its owners of the control of it; even in cases in which it would take military possession of cotton, the property of loyal citizens. Neutrals will (if I have not mistaken you) be allowed to avail themselves of any facilities for exportation which are, or which may be, afforded to loyal citizens, but will not be deprived of their free choice in the matter. Will the Government of the United States record this in a regular official document?

I should have mentioned this matter to you orally had I not been afraid of making some mistake in a matter in which may involve so seriously the interests of British subjects. The communication being private, no inconvenience can arise from its being in writing. I shall be very grateful for an early answer.

Believe me, &c.,

Lord Lyons to Earl Russell.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 24, 1862.

MY LORD: With my dispatch of the 19th inst., I had the honor to transmit to your lordship a copy of a letter which I had written to Mr. SEWARD, with a view to ascertain whether the Government of the United States was willing to give definite assurances calculated to give confidence to Confederate sellers and neutral purchasers of cotton. I spoke to Mr. SEWARD about this letter yesterday, and endeavored to obtain from him some definite answer to the questions put in it. Such an answer, however, he was evidently unprepared to give. I then inquired whether he could furnish me with any information respecting the intentions of the Government which would be calculated to allay disquiet in Europe, and to give a turn to public opinion favorable to the United States.

Mr. SEWARD said that one of the impediments to the restoration of the cotton trade had been an impression that the possession of New-Orleans by the Federal Government would be only temporary, but that there was proof that this impression was fast fading away from the Southern mind. I might, indeed, Mr. SEWARD added, confidently assure people in Europe that, in a short time, Gen. BANKS' military talents and administrative ability would restore loyalty to the whole State of Louisiana; that by a vote of the loyal inhabitants that State would resume its normal position, and that this could not fail to revive the cotton trade.

I observed to Mr. SEWARD that this prospect was distant and vague, and that my purpose would be much better answered by some distinct assurances as to matters at the present moment under the control of the Federal Government. If any English merchant should apply to me, might I advise him to make at once purchases of cotton in the so-called Confederate States, and send them to New-Orleans? Might I tell him that he would be allowed to export his cotton without obstacle?

In answer to this, Mr. SEWARD reverted to the new regulations which it is proposed to establish, and in virtue of which cotton is to be taken possession of by the Federal officers, and sent by them to the Northern markets, no other mode of exportation being allowed.

I observed to Mr. SEWARD, as I had done on more than one previous occasion, that I thought these regulations would cause alarm rather than satisfaction in Europe; that they would be regarded as placing neutrals in a worse position than they were already. Could not the United States Government at least give some additional facilities to purchasers? If neutrals were worse by reason of the control of their purchases they might be willing to buy, with a view to holding the cotton, in the hope that some contingency (such as that which he had mentioned of the restoration of loyalty in Louisiana), would enable the Government to remove all the restrictions on its exportations. This might, at least, save a great deal of cotton from destruction by the Confederates.

Mr. SEWARD said that the great difficulty lay in the mode of payment for the purchases. What were neutrals to send to the insurgent States in return for cotton? Hence a military question arose at once. Could the Generals allow any of the specie, or clothing to pass? Could they not allow gold? I asked. And I added that in fact the only practical mode of facilitating purchases would be to bar all inquiries as to how the cotton was paid for; to let the buyers and sellers settle that matter as they best could.

It became evident that there was no use in continuing the discussion. Mr. SEWARD was plainly not in a position to make any concessions at all to neutrals. Nor is this surprising, for the only mode in which the Federal Government can, under present circumstances, bring cotton to market without adding to the resources of the so-styled Confederate Government, or diminishing the privations of the Southern people, must be by relaxing it by the mere fact of contracting it; and consequently the only facility likely to be given to neutrals is that of buying from the Federal authorities cotton thus seized. This seems to be the meaning of the new regulations.

EARL RUSSELL'S COMMENTS ON THE PROCLAMATION.

Earl Russell to Lord Lyons.
FOREIGN OFFICE, Jan. 17, 1863.

MY LORD: The Proclamation of the President of the United States, inclosed in your lordship's dispatch of the 2d inst., appears to be of a very strange nature.

It professes to emancipate all slaves in places where the United States authorities cannot exercise any jurisdiction, nor make emancipation a reality, but it does not decree emancipation of slaves in any State or parts of States occupied by Federal troops, and subject to United States jurisdiction, and where, therefore, emancipation, if decreed, might have been carried into effect.

It would seem to follow that in the Border States, and also in New-Orleans, a slaveowner may recover his fugitive slave by the ordinary process of law; but that in the ten States in which the proclamation decrees emancipation, a fugitive slave affected by legal warrant may resist, and his resistance, if successful, is to be upheld and aided by the United States authorities and the United States armed forces.

The proclamation, therefore, makes Slavery at once legal and illegal, and makes slaves either punishable for running away from their masters, or entitled to be supported and encouraged in so doing, according to the locality of the plantation to which they belong, and the loyalty of the State in which they may happen to be.

There seems to be no declaration of a principle adverse to Slavery in this Proclamation. It is a measure of war, and a measure of war of a very questionable kind. As President LINCOLN has twice appealed to the judgment of mankind in his Proclamation, I venture to say I do not think it can or ought to satisfy the friends of Abolition, who look for total and impartial freedom for the slave, and not for vengeance on the slaveowner.

I am, &c. (Signed) RUSSELL.

WHAT LORD LYONS THINKS OF THE CONDITION OF AFFAIRS.

Lord Lyons to Earl Russell.
[Extract.]
WASHINGTON, Jan. 13, 1863.

The terms of service of a very large portion of the present army expires in the Spring, or in the early Summer. If the present state of feeling continues, very few of the men will reënlist; fresh volunteers will not present themselves, and to enforce a large compulsory draft will be impossible. Already desertions are very frequent; they would, it is said, be much more so did not men remain in hopes of soon receiving the large arrears of pay due to them. It was stated the other day in Congress that more than one-fourth of the officers were absent from their regiments, some with, many without leave. The Emancipation Proclamation has disgusted many; it has made still more doubt the possibility of any other result of the war, whenever it may end, than separation. Nor is the one great advantage which the Republican party has, that of holding the Executive power, turned by them to the best account. The unpopularity and the failures of the Administration recoil upon its supporters, and they in return weaken the Administration by manifesting their discontent with it. The attack made upon the Cabinet by the Republican Senators has no doubt damaged it very much. Nor is the effect of it allowed to subside. It is pursued in the newspapers; indeed, yesterday the text of the resolutions pressing the President to change his Cabinet was published in one of the Washington journals. Beside these party troubles, there is in some of the Western States, and especially in Indiana and Illinois, a discontent which causes apprehensions of even more than constitutional opposition. To add to all this, the state of the finances is becoming really alarming. The pay of the army is six months in arrear.

The Democratic party seeks to profit by the difficulties of its opponents, without committing itself to any very definite policy. Thus it attacks the arbitrary arrests and the other extra-legal measures of the Cabinet, and, above all, the military administration; but it does not risk its own popularity by declaring against the war, or pronouncing the word "separation." Its leaders know that it is safe to be the Peace party, and that it really gets all the votes of those who desire peace. They will not incur the danger of losing other votes by avowing a desire for peace themselves. They desire to throw on the Republicans all the responsibility of the failure of the war, and they hope, if they succeed in this, to be able to dictate terms to the people to whom, and the Democratic party will be very glad to accept all shares of the responsibility of carrying on the war.

According to present appearances the difficulty of keeping up the numerical force of the army cannot fail to be the most probable cause of peace. Could money be obtained, however, to relieve the war-pressure, and an armistice, to the Confederates of the Northern States, would probably induce great numbers of recreants to enlist for a short period to defend their homes.

There is nothing at present to show whether or not there is likely to be in the meantime a conference at which foreign Powers may step in with proposals [illegible]

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—The combined influence of unusually inclement weather and Passion Week had their effect, not only on the attendance of last night, but on the artists who were unfortunate enough to take part in the representation. "Lucia di Lammermoor," under the circumstances, was an exercise creditable alike to the company and the audience. Fortunately, Mlle. ORELLANI-BRIGNOLI was the least affected of the troupe, and as her rôle is the one of most importance, she was able in a measure to redeem the evening's amusement. In the opening scene of the first act the lady was heard to great advantage, and obtained a merited salvo of applause. In the mad scene of the third act she was also excellent. Signor MASSESINI was hardly up to his usual standard, but was himself in the end. Signor BELLINI was too unwell to appear as Arturo, and Signor TRUFFI assumed his rôle, although laboring under a cold which the first-named gentleman could hardly have excelled. Under the unfortunate circumstances of the evening, it will easily be understood that the performance was not on a par with those that have preceded it.

To-night BELLINI's opera of "Norma" will be repeated for the last time, with the same admirable distribution that made it so successful on Monday last.

BROOKLYN NEWS.

THE WILLIAMSBURGH ABORTION CASE.—In the Court of Sessions, yesterday, Dr. PETER W. RAY, a colored physician, was arraigned for trial on an indictment charging him with manslaughter in the second degree, in procuring an abortion on the person of MARY BURNS, a white unmarried woman, employed as a servant in a family in Williamsburgh. The deceased died in August last under circumstances which led to the suspicion that she had been improperly dealt with. Several physicians were examined as witnesses, who swore to the effect that death resulted in consequence of loss of blood, caused by premature birth, but no direct evidence was brought to show that Dr. RAY had used improper means to accomplish the object. The ante-mortem examination of the deceased having been made by Coroner MURPHY, who held the inquest, her statement was admitted in evidence, and which was to the effect that Dr. RAY had attended her during her illness. The defense was a general denial. After summing up of counsel, Judge GARDNER (presiding) stated that in his opinion there was not enough evidence to convict the defendant; but being overruled by his associates, permitted the case to go to the jury. After a comparatively brief deliberation, the jury convicted the defendant of misdemeanor, in having used instruments with intent to procure miscarriage. The defendant is to be brought up for sentence on Thursday. The punishment provided by statute is imprisonment in the Penitentiary for not less than three months nor more than one year.

SENTENCES IN THE COURT OF SESSIONS.—THOS. MCDONALD, a man about forty years of age, pleaded guilty to violating the person of a girl not more than twelve years old. He was sentenced to State Prison for ten years. MICHAEL QUINN, a little boy, indicted for burglary, was permitted to plead guilty of larceny, and was sentenced to the House of Refuge.
